

BEGINNING

MIDDLE

END

Challenge: how we have to use scholarly articles even if an account of someone's personal experiences would be more accurate

Finding info and sources-worked well + finding controversial questions is hard

Started getting there! Done first map and figured out how to make a diagram by making an outline first!

Ebsco can be hard to use because many of the articles focus on scientific/mathematical/statistical data rather than sociological aspects

Love the project! Learning lots!

It's all coming together quickly and gets cluttered.

Inspiration - takes a while to get the hang of it; using paper first to get ideas down helped; a bit confusing at the beginning

Synthesizing info into research topic is hard

Using Inspiration program is difficult

Valuable work time

Thoughts led to new thoughts

I'm unsure how I will proceed with my creative project

Going well: I'm enjoying the project and the research; I've learned quite a bit from researching

I didn't do much research, but I liked Inspiration because it helped me get my thoughts down and get them organized

It's hard to research and not do the thinking

I lost a subtopic, but because of that I gained a lot more information that relates..this will make my subtopic better. Research went well.

Bad: time! I'm having troubles with getting all of my questions done in the time provided.

I had a lot of personal reflection

Challenge: points of research do not reflect personal opinion

Everything is figured out... first map is done...things going well.

Having a hard time finding sources to back up my thoughts

It's going well. I got enough sleep last night. That was good.

Challenge: time to explore topic is needed without the pressure of making "headway" with the project

I wish that Inspiration was more user friendly and it looked more aesthetically pleasing

Going good, but what's the purpose of this research?

Finding information is difficult and everything is really intuitive

I have a lot of sources and information but I can't organize them into questions to address my ideas.

It's really hard to access academic sources about things that happened recently.

Would like more time

Having a hard time finding a starting point

It is hard with my topic not to get too far into other related topics

Hard to narrow the topic down

I am having trouble finding academic sources, other than EBSCO.

Great sources: more time would be lovely; really interesting!

no research needed to develop questions things going well

Inspiration works well for mapping ideas - it is intuitive... works like thinking with ideas bouncing ideas off of each other

I get ideas and then look for sources, instead of looking for sources to inspire ideas

The flow of ideas has come smoother... stuff written down and branched off...

There is a lot of citing to do. It shows up weirdly in inspiration and takes up a lot of space.

Researching is time consuming and difficult. Sources are not fun.

Lots of resources; easy to find information

Takes so much time! Maybe that is because I am not used to the process.

It's hard to find useful sources, but once you get a good one, BINGO!

Finding sources is challenging... I already know information

"Son of Citation" a good cite. My topics overlap though.

Sources were a lot easier to find today.

It is difficult to process and compress the information; it takes a lot of time to do research; I like Ebsco!

Inspiration and Ebsco are really helpful; rapid fire is great!

"Son of Citation" was a good citation generator, but sometimes it was hard to tell what exactly a certain source qualified as.

Talking to my friends was actually beneficial.